

Terrific Load On Band of Nurses

Need for Increase in Personnel of Service by Health Minister

WINNIPEG — Destitution, particularly in the unorganized parts of the province, is placing a terrific load on the little band of 27 women who are all that is left of the Manitoba provincial nursing service, according to the annual report of the department of health and public welfare, tabled in the legislature by Hon. I. B. Griffiths, minister.

"There is urgent need for an increase in the personnel of this service," Dr. F. W. Jackson, deputy minister, writes in reviewing the work of the year. "I am convinced that a province-wide scheme of nursing service could more than pay for itself."

"Investigating cases for hospitalization and indigency and visiting relief cases is now taking up a third of the nurses' time." Little time thus is left for the regular duties of health supervision in rural schools, conducting clinics, conducting classes in first aid and home nursing, and giving bedside attention to the needy sick.

Miss E. A. Russell, head of the nursing service, said help to relief work had been given by several organizations, including The Tribune Empty Stomach Fund, which donated more than 1,000 toys and a quantity of clothing. Through the Winnipeg Junior League, the Women's Club, Renfrew Ladies' Club and other groups, more than 600 children were assisted so that they could go to school. The Municipal Chapter, I.O. D.E., made 200 garments. Children's dresses were made by three groups of Girl Guide Banners. Members of the civil service knitted mitts and other woollen clothing and men of the unemployment relief office donated 270 pairs of children's moccasins. Miss Margaret Meehan of the service, directed work which valued $3,500 for relief treatment for cancer for needy country people. In examining 5,054 country school children, 4,278 were found to have defects of teeth, tonsils and other ailments.

In all, 23,900 home visits were made for health instruction, 1,920 mothers and children went to child welfare stations, and 103 clinics for teeth, tuberculosis and mental hygiene were aided.

New Zeppelin "Airworthy"

Final Three-Hour Test Flight Is Made in Rainstorm

FRIEDRICHSHAFEN, Germany, — Germany's new silver airship, the LZ129, was pronounced "airworthy" after a final three-hour test flight in the rain. Members of the state control commission were aboard and Dr. Hugo Eckener was at the helm.

Other passengers included representatives of the technical and experimental station for aviation and 12 technical experts of the air ministry.

Lieut. Commander Scott Peck of the Lakehurst naval air station, an American observer, praised the performance of the new zeppelin. He has accompanied the ship on all test flights.

He declared the engines are far more powerful and much faster than in American dirigibles mainly because of the streamlining of the LZ129.

"I consider all possibilities of danger eliminated," the American said.

When Old Buildings Burn

(From the Peterborough Examiner)

Ontario Street in Stratford has had more than its share of fires in recent weeks. It is not long since the Beacon-Herald moved back to its home after being driven out by fire. Now a building across the street, the old Albion Hotel block, has been attacked and reports indicate damage has been serious. Probably the one thing a person watches for in a fire report more than any other is some announcement regarding what will now be done. In the case of the fire at the Beacon-Herald, we believe it is correct to say that plans for the rebuilding were under way before the fire was thoroughly dealt with and conquered. In that case there was inconvenience and plenty of it, but there was rebuilding on a better scale. The community had nothing to worry about in such a situation. A good many contractors and workers would actually benefit because the fire took place.

In a fire in the Albion Hotel block it will be different. Years ago it was a going concern as a hotel, but it is not so today. For months

Census of Transients Shows Few Farmers

BURLINGTON—A new census of transients, supplementary to the December 13th count which showed that 66 per cent. of Ontario's "forgotten men" were unskilled laborers, is planned by the special committee in charge of the work, Edmund H. Holtby, honorary secretary, announced recently.

The former census was taken throughout the province. It showed that one out of every four of the thousands of transients were either under 20 or over 50, and that less than two per cent. of those registered gave farming as their trade.

Under miscellaneous occupations were listed some 20 per cent., said Mr. Holtby. Two claimed to be inventors and one a mile-stone inspector. The census was taken from municipal welfare records.

Ontario Public Warned Against Phoney Schools

Racketeers Flourish on "Tuition" Fees of Innocent Students.

Toronto Yields $993,321

TORONTO — Increasing activity of racketeers for fraudulent correspondence schools, selling "courses" to technical and college students in Toronto and throughout Ontario, or through powerfully worded advertisements and letters, has started the Toronto Better Business Bureau out upon a campaign against phoney schools.

Fake correspondence schools, and schools that sell courses on the promise that work will be found for graduates, have been operating in Toronto for years. Two of the biggest on this continent, with head offices in Toronto, were forced out of business comparatively recently. One of these, selling a shorthand course, took $449,321 from innocent victims or their parents; the other, providing a "home work" scheme, obtained $445,000.

Since the depression, however, "trade schools" have flourished, offering courses in trades which ostensibly promised handsome incomes with improving economic conditions. Some of the courses being offered are art, advertising, medical technology, aircraft, beauty culture, hairdressing, dancing, automotive engineering, etc. Not all schools advertising such courses are racketeers, but legitimate schools have welcomed exposure of the impostors.

Literature sent through the mail to young men and women just graduating from high schools has been the greatest means of furthering these rackets in the past. But slick salesmen have lately been soliciting among students in Toronto and elsewhere.

Ontario Hit Hard By Threshing Fires

BARNIA—Of agricultural areas in both Canada and the United States, Ontario, almost extent, has suffered to any large extent from fires resulting from threshing operations.

P. S. D. Harding, inspector of the Ontario Fire Marshal's department, said, addressing the convention of the Brotherhood of Threshersmen, "Approximately 90 per cent. of all of the fires which result from threshing machines were caused from matches and cigarettes, through carelessness of the help. Mr. Harding said, however, he believed that many fires were caused by the threshers themselves for which he was not responsible. Last year Mr. Harding investigated 62 barn and threshing fires, this being an increase of 28 compared with 1934.

Animal Reason Professor Says That Beasts Possess Power to Think

Professor J. H. T. Coleman, head of the department of philosophy, University of British Columbia, who said in an address here "It might be added animals have reason, and human beings have instinct."

"We are all willing to believe that animals think, but in so doing we set ourselves in opposition to a large and victorious group of psychologists who do not believe that even men think except a few philosophers."

Comparing animal and human mind, Professor Coleman said they had passed for a certain distance, "but the human mind goes on where the animal stops, to what seems infinity."

Stories of animal intelligence and, inhuman, come down through history he said, but the only valid test of the animal mind was under laboratory conditions.

HAVE YOU HEARD

A man says he always takes his wife to town when he wants to buy himself a new suit. He knows who to please.

Father—What's that young man's intentions, daughter?
Daughter—Don't know, Daddy Dear. He is keeping me pretty much in the dark.

A career should be "up" to you—not down.

Political Speaker—I'm pleased to see such a dense crowd here tonight. Voice—Don't be too pleased. We ain't all dense.

Most men buy a seat in the chair car so they can have something to eat their bags on while they are in the smoking compartment.

Judge—I award the eight-day clock to the plaintiff.
Defendant—And what do I get?
Judge—You get the eight days.

In order to cater to an intelligent public one must have a small supply on hand himself.

Hubby—If you don't stop nagging me I'm going to tell you a few things.
Wife—You might begin by telling me why you called me "Baby" in your sleep last night.

If we like his ideas he is a man of vision;

Modernized Murder
In the past 15 years, no major underworld figure in New York has had to answer to a court of justice for the homicides done at his bidding. The only charges the major racketeers face at all are charges of income tax evasion, and, surrounded by sharp and cunning lawyers who have a special talent for "fixing" juries, even that fear is, with him, not the fear of despair. The racket boss has a profound contempt for the courts and creaky court machinery. If gangs and gang chiefs were not wiped out from time to time by the guns of their competitors there would not be enough penitentiaries and office buildings to hold them. — (From Current History.)

Youth And Music

The way to have a musical people is to have people make music. A good deal is talked about the educative effect of listening to radio and phonographic records, and there is something in it (albeit most for those who know music already), but to make an actor you do not sit and watch plays.

In Springfield the hotels are full of especially appetizing guests. Who should they be but 600 boys and girls musicians in the orchestras and bands from high schools in New England towns and cities? And all rehearsing like a house afire for the festival on Saturday afternoon. The public schools are the life-savers of American music from the drowning of too much passive listening to radio and the asphyxiation of vulgar jazz.

Here children are taught to know the noble music from rubbish that is often filthy and vile, and being taught to love the good. As for their rehearsal and concerts here in this boom is nothing but the most wholehearted and earnest of their time, for if anything has ever been found that is more fun for a musical child than a Spring Festival of amateur players no one knows what it is.

A family party at the villa of Dr. Jean Sibelius in Finland, was debating this question—whether passive listening to radio and phonograph will sterilize music-making. One of the composer's daughters, a pianist, said, "I like both preserved fruit and fresh fruit. Each has its distinctive flavor." But her father spoke as composer and with authority.

"The distant will continue to listen to machines and the great talents will continue to create."

During the last 10 years, the population of Southwark, London, England, has decreased by 22,764.

Has Cure Of Cancer Been Discovered?

Instances Cited as Proof of Serum's Results. — Hopeless Cases are Aided.

Dr. J. E. Hett, of 607 Sherbourne St., Toronto, Ontario, who has been interested in cancer since his graduation in medicine from the University of Toronto, in 1901, has devoted nearly all of his spare time to research work and intensive study of this great problem.

He toured Europe on different occasions and visited the laboratories and cancer clinics in London, Paris, Berlin, Heidelberg, Vienna, Prague, Padua, Bologna and Rome.

For years in his own laboratory in Kitchener he worked away quietly, taking no time off for sports or other diversions but devoting every spare moment after the hard day's work at his profession of medicine and surgery. On many occasions he worked throughout the night. Eventually he became convinced that germs were the actual cause of cancer and that irritation alone was not sufficient. He pursued this theory steadily and four and one-half years ago reached the conclusion that he had developed a serum, which, if given intravenously would obtain the long looked for results.

At first his patients were very few but gradually they have increased in numbers so that now he is very busy treating patients every week in Toronto, Kitchener, London and Windsor. For some months past, records have been compiled of a large number of cases. These records are scientifically prepared with the clinical histories and biopsies (pathological reports of sections removed for diagnosis). As time goes on more and more records are added and progress noted.

In the Toronto Evening Telegram of November 10th last, the following appeared:

Doctors Surprised
"A number of very prominent medical men have examined these records and are very greatly surprised at the results. The profession as a whole, however, knows but little of this work which has been going on so quietly. Dr. Hett up to the present time has not given his formulae to the profession and for that reason there has been but little publicity."

Dr. Hett declares that it is his intention to give his secret to the profession when the time comes.

"I am entirely convinced myself, but I do not wish to be considered premature and declaring it. I have a number of cases that have been cured one, two, three and four years ago, but he has been given but a few months or weeks to live," he told the Telegram. "And the remarkable part of it is that these patients have kept well and added some weight than a year ago, and are carrying on their usual occupations, some of them the heavy business that fall on farmers' wives."

"There was no selection of these cases and a large percentage of them were looked on as hopeless, and the only thing that could be done for them was the administration of morphine to relieve their pain. I am no longer experimenting; that stage of the treatment was passed four years ago. I am now obtaining results—results that have never been obtained before anywhere," he says.

Remarkable Results
During the past four years Dr. Hett has carefully watched each patient, and has acquired considerable knowledge. The subject of cancer is still a very great problem, and there are different forms of malignancy. Some cases are slow in growth and others very rapid. His serum gives a definite reaction when first administered, and during all the times he has used it not a single accident has happened to a patient, and he has treated some with very high blood pressure; in others, a very low blood pressure with heart disease and other complications. He has discovered that where cancers are slow growing, he cannot obtain a high degree of reaction, whilst with those of rapid growth the reaction is very strong.

Some of these patients are living in Toronto and others outside. The Telegram last year, and early this year had the opportunity of seeing several of them, and recently checked up on their progress following the apparent cure. Records recently made show remarkable gains in weight and added strength by some; and the others continue in good health.

Cureability of Cancer
In 1927 the Department of Health of Detroit established a cancer division as a registry of the cancer cases treated in all the Detroit hospitals. The attempt has been made to follow the cases treated there surgically or otherwise in 1927, '28, '29, for five years. No case was included unless the pathological diagnosis was recorded, but the attempt was made to include all cases treated in 11 hospitals. The result is an exhibition of the work in attempting to cure cancer in the hospitals of a large city.

The figures show the terrible mortality of the disease, despite all that has been accomplished to date by surgery or radium or other treatment.

Organ	Total Living at end of five yrs.
Stomach	356
Intestine	90
Rectum	96
Uterus	179
Breast	283

Dr. Hett's Success

A comparison of these records with the records that Dr. Hett has at this time would certainly give the medical profession an idea of the remarkable results obtained in the treatment of the disease similarly located by Dr. Hett with his serum.

The records were examined by the Telegram, and they are available to members of the medical profession who desire to examine them.

The doctor says he realizes the many difficulties which can arise before the medical world can be convinced. A number of local medical men who have attended his clinic and examined his records have declared themselves convinced that his proof is ample, but he declares some time must elapse before he lay his cards all on the table. Four years ago, when he had only a few patients to show, he was urged to announce what he had, but he declined on the grounds that it would be unwise to create any false hope if such should be the case.

"Time is always needed and essential to prove permanency of results," he says, "but I can say now that my studies and observations of many patients prove to me beyond the shadow of doubt that permanency will be proved."

Dr. Hett is not opposed to surgery, X-rays and radium. He claims these all have their places, but a very large number of patients are not amenable to these treatments or have failed to respond to them. Whilst he has been successful in advanced cases of cancer, he has also been successful in cases of sarcoma. He believes also that his serum will prevent cancer, but he has not given it in a single case for the reason that it would be impossible to absolutely prove it. He states that the time will certainly come when people will be immunized against cancer, but that will not come until the profession will recognize that the cure of cancer has been discovered.

Dr. Hett was the first physician in the world to treat an internal fibroid growth by X-rays. He obtained a complete cure and published his results in the Journal of Advanced Therapeutics in September, 1924. He discontinued using X-rays since then, as he did not get any results with X-rays in cancer.

Dr. Hett takes no holidays, and he works seven days a week. He is at present travelling some 600 miles every week, covering the province westward as far as Windsor, as an endeavor to meet the demands of patients who are unable to come to Toronto. He declares the strain is a heavy one for a man of his age.

Dr. Hett states that he has had quite a number of patients, some of them bedridden, who had been considered hopeless cases and who are now carrying on normal life again. In fact states the Doctor, "the most of the cases I have treated were far advanced."

The case of Mrs. Small, 936 Manning Ave., Toronto, is the most remarkable. Dr. Hett said that he has not read of such a remarkable case anywhere in medical literature, and that medical men who have seen and examined her hold the same opinion.

"Mrs. Small was told in June 1934, that her case was hopeless and nothing was left but morphine to ease her. Her family was told three months previously that there was no hope for her whatever. She had a part of the bowel removed in the Women's College Hospital in November 1932 and the finding pronounced by microscopical examination was adenocarcinoma. X-rays and radium were later given. A number of outstanding medical men and surgeons had given her up in the beginning of 1934 and it was not until July 27, 1934, that Dr. Hett saw her. At that time she was very low. She was in terrible distress and weighed less than 100 pounds. She had a recurrence and a large mass of cancer in the pelvis. Also cancer in the bladder and was taking as much as 19 one-half grain tablets of morphine daily. On January 13, 1935, she took the last dose of morphine and has not taken any since. After treatment with the serum she has gradually improved and leads a normal life again and has been doing all her household work for a considerable time. Her weight is now 116 pounds, the same as it has been the past year and she is the picture of health as her photograph taken January 24, 1936, shows."

Dr. Hett believes this is the most spectacular case recorded. Not only because of the recovery after being so near to death but also because of the breaking off of the habit of taking so much of morphine each day. Dr. Hett believes that no record can be found in any medical journal or other publication of a case that apparently was as hopeless as this and a recovery made.

Dr. Hett is well up in years and recognizes the fact that the time is short for the carrying on of his work. He states that he does not want more patients than he can properly treat

A Reconstruction Plan for Minto

By Prof. S. E. McCready

Editor's Note: This is the conclusion of a series of ten articles which were published recently in the "Minto Review." While written specially for the "Review" and addressed to residents of Minto Township particularly, we believe they have been found interesting to many of the readers of this paper because the problems of the farm folk of Minto Township are the same problems that confront rural people throughout the province.

So, with all respect and in all humility I make bold to suggest a reconstruction plan for Minto. It has no connection of any sort with a political reconstruction such as Mr. Starnes advocated in the recent election. Nor is it of a sort such as the five-year plans imposed on the Russian farmers by their governmental dictators. Rather it is the sort of economic reconstruction accomplished by Denmark largely through a sensible scheme of adult education. The agency, which, in my opinion, could give the necessary leadership best for such a forward movement is the Minto Agricultural Society.

A few weeks ago the Society called the West Wellington Society. That held its 23rd annual Fall Fair. That means that the first Fall Fair was held in 1913. I believe the time has come when there should be a general stock taking with regard to all our Agricultural Societies and other government supported rural organizations and institutions to find out not only "where they are at" but also at what place they aim to arrive.

Nobody doubts the value of the Minto Fall Fair or any other Fall Fair as a happy social get-together. From the standpoint of encouraging and perpetuating the spirit of neighborliness the Fall Fair is well worthwhile. Indeed there should be more of such gatherings. But from the standpoint of advancing the economic well being of Minto Township there can hardly be the same opinion about the value of the Society's work. For the tasks we are facing should not our Agricultural Societies modernize themselves and put themselves at the task of re-directing and reconstructing Ontario Agriculture?

The Minto Agricultural Society has had a long and honorable career. It is the one organization in the Township, apart from the Township Council, that is all inclusive of the population and continuous in its operation. Its purposes are unselfish. Its aim is the public good. Its leadership is established and accepted. My suggestion is that the Society should broaden its services beyond the Fall Fair idea and become a Minto Agricultural and Development (or Reconstruction) Society. During the War the Ontario Government had an Organization of Resources Committee to promote food production and other war-time needs. It is something like this for the new era that Minto faces that I have in mind; bringing about a union of all the Township's forces so that it may attain to its full possibilities. So that none of its resources be unorganized.

Should such a proposal find favorable consideration one of the first duties of the Society would be to "take stock." If possible, the actual and real benefits, derived from the Fall Fair should be honestly estimated. There should be careful consideration of the really constructive value of cash prizes for most of the competitions. Mr. Whaley told and that it is his hope that the time will soon come that it is generally recognized that he has discovered the treatment for cancer for which the whole world has been looking.

me of a former in Bruce County who had been getting a prize for many years on the same basis of Bruce County, thought they had long ceased to be grown by him or any of his sons. Then the Society should take stock of the Township's needs. Find out if possible the average yield per acre in the Township; the average wheat yield; the losses from weeds, the defects in potato and tomato marketing; the conditions of the orchards; the care given to bush lots; the amount of beautification of farms surrounding; whether the five stock of the Township is noticeably improving from year to year; the difficulties of securing needed credits; the burden of mortgages; the cost of sickness; the distresses of the aged poor; the educational facilities of the Township; whether the schools have medical inspection and medical instruction.

LESSON NO. 96

Hand Lettering The Music Staff

Almost everyone is familiar with the arrangement of 5 lines and 4 spaces in the music staff. This arrangement is identical with the system of alignment used in ruling guide lines for lettering.

Fig. 234 demonstrates the method of laying out of Gothic or block letters, both capital and small letters. The capital letters are known in the printer's terms as "UPPER CASE" and "LOWER CASE".

height of the capital letters, and all small letters which ascend above normal top line No. 2. This line is also known as the "ASCENDERS".

No. 3, is the top line height of all normal small letters. Note that the strokes known as the "DESCENDERS" that is all the strokes of the small letters reach above the top line.

No. 4, the waist line of the small letters.

No. 4, the base line for Capitals and all normal small letters.

No. 5, "DESCENDERS", or drop line for the small letters which descend below the normal base.

With this easy method of alignment a child can produce good lettering. As a beginner becomes more familiar with the make-up of letters he will not need to layout all of these lines every time that he creates some lettering; but, it is useful for special occasions.

The ability to draw beautifully is an accomplishment in itself. The ability to draw plain, simple letters is an accomplishment also; but of little use without the skill to compose them effectively.

The more you delve into this subject, you will find that lettering is more than a mere side line of drawing. It is an art worthy of specialization. A side line is a once in a while, lettering is now in steady demand.

Keep your pen clean if you wish to do good work.

For EX. NO. 95 Layout the entire alphabet of Capital and small letters

Library of Four Million Books To Have 220-Volume Catalogue

(From the London Observer)

Slowly but surely two great tasks in librarianship are being brought to their logical conclusion in the confines of the British Museum.

The more important task, for which there is a world demand, is the scientific cataloguing of every book in the Museum—a number not exactly known, but certainly many thousands more than 4,000,000.

This was begun more than three years ago and is expected to last at least another twenty-two years. Graduates trained in this specialized work, have so far only reached the letter "B". Books of the letter "A" on which nearly two years' work was spent, already occupy the first eight massive volumes of the new catalogue.

More than a year's labor has produced four similar volumes on books of the letter "R," and considerably more work is in prospect before a move to "C" can be undertaken. When—possibly in 1938—the work is completed, the complete catalogue will be about 220 volumes.

The other task is the reconstruction and rearrangement of the Iron Library, which runs in four galleries around the famous reading room. Six steel galleries will take its place.

Work has been going on in the northwest sector of the Iron Library for three years, and it will be at least another thirteen or fourteen years before the work is finished.

Including books, serial parts of volumes, newspapers, pamphlets, maps, and other contemporary documents, approximately 300,000 publications are received at the Museum in the course of twelve months. As dictated by law, they come from every corner of the British Isles, including the Irish Free State, for when the Act of Separation was drawn up it was specified that Irish publications should be deposited in London as before.

Small wonder that the shelves of the British Museum increase at the rate of one mile every year. The great output of novels, however, is the easiest part of the librarians' task, as each book requires but a single entry before being deposited.

Much space will be saved by the conversion of the old iron library to steel, and in deciding on steel the Office of Works were mindful that cast-iron cracks, and has cracked at Bloomsbury.

Mr. Arundell J. K. Edalle, the Secretary of the British Museum, told an Observer representative recently that the expert cataloguing staff was being gradually increased to twenty men and women, but would not exceed that number.

"The new catalogue will be the second of its kind," Mr. Edalle explained. "The first was begun in 1801 and, with its supplements, was not finished until 1905. That included all the books in the Museum up to 1900. The second catalogue is being undertaken in a much more thorough manner, with a more painstaking examination of all the books."

"It has been inspired by a remarkable demand from other countries, particularly the United States. The old catalogue has gone to very high prices. It was issued in parts and not in volumes, and I believe that as much as $1,500 has been offered for it."

On-to-Ottawa Trekkers Cost Dominion $32,104

OTTAWA.—The Dominion Government paid $32,104 to Saskatchewan and 2996 to Alberta, a total of $32,104, in connection with the "on-to-Ottawa trek" last summer. This was shown by order-in-Council tabled in the House of Commons recently.

The payment of Alberta covered cost of meals furnished the trekkers during stops at Calgary and Medicine Hat. The Saskatchewan payment covered expenditures for "sustenance, tobacco and transportation" during the period from June 12 to September 11, 1935.

More Juvenile Designs in the Wonder Package

Here are 21 more juvenile patterns from the Wonder Package, the package containing 12 sheets (each 24 by 24 inches) just crammed with over 100 different patterns.

The group shown above is only half of one of the large sheets and when you consider how many there are on this and the wonderful possibilities just imagine the fun you and the children will have with it.

You will have fun painting and embroidering these designs and the children will thoroughly enjoy the articles which bear these decorations. Just imagine the sparkling whale riding along on the embroidered button-holed ware, an attractive decoration for curtains or towels.

The locomotive, aeroplane and automobile would make an amusing group for lamp shade, especially for boys' room. The three groups of boats could be applied to a 25c parchment lamp shade and then etched in black and filled in with bright colors.

The designs are much larger than shown here, the sheet from which they were taken measures 18 by 24 inches.

That little house in the clouds would be most attractive for decorating little sister's lunch box and the little boy fishing or the dog and cat would be just the thing for brother's box.

You no doubt have many articles about the house which require a

Smoke Without Fire

Dr. W. J. McCormick, Toronto physician, has invented an electrical heater which enables smokers to derive smoke from tobacco without burning it, thus eliminating undesirable gases generated in the process of combustion. The tobacco is placed in a porcelain container surrounded by an element and it attached by wire to an electrical plug. A thermostat in the container keeps the temperature even. Here is Dr. McCormick and his fireless pipe.

Raw Milk Cited As Disease Bearer

Has Been Origin Of 47
Epidemics In The Dominion

Such are the diseases bearing potentialities of raw milk that Mr. A. P. Herbert, M.P., English author and playwright has coined for it the label "the tuberculous beverage".

To any health-conscious community there is something immediately revolting in such a phrase. Milk is recognized as one of the most universal and essential foods in the civilized home. To speak of it as the purveyor of one of the greatest scourges of the human race is naturally unpleasant. Yet because it is such, a capable carrier of disease and because it is allowed to be served in its natural state in the great mass of homes Mr. Herbert's label is by no means an exaggeration. Nor is it unjust.

In fact, when one reflects upon the number of epidemics of typhoid fever, paratyphoid fever, scarlet fever, undulant fever, and septic sore throat traced to raw milk supplies in the past two decades of a presumably enlightened world, Mr. Herbert's label becomes extremely inadequate and discriminatory. And to Canadians, with unhappy memories of the community milk can in England, who might grow snobbish and feel safe in the reflection that the description is applicable only to the "old country", it might be opportune to point out for their consideration some recent Canadian statistics.

Raw milk has for example, been the point of origin for 47 epidemics of typhoid, paratyphoid and scarlet fever, L. this country in the last 21 years. These epidemics accounted for 878 lives, left inestimable misery among 7,772 other victims and cost the communities and governments concerned fabulous sums. Medical Officer of Health of Toronto, named as the cause, "if the truth were known", of 15,000 of the 20,000 child-deaths in Canada each year. Some indication of its damage as a tuberculous carrier is to be had from research statistics of the Hospital for Sick Children in Toronto, which show that 15 per cent of 200 tuberculous children investigated were victims of the bovine type of the tubercle bacillus.

The attempts at community protection against these diseases and their carrier are hardly more flattering to twentieth century Canada. It is a fact that only five of the 24 larger cities of the Dominion—four in Ontario and one in Saskatchewan, Saskatchewan have 100 per cent pasteurization. In seven others less than 70 per cent of the milk supply is pasteurized. It is also a fact that in ten of these partially protected communities less than 60 per cent of the dairy cows undergo so much as a tuberculin test. On the total only 23 municipalities in Canada have compulsory pasteurization and, it may be pointed out that one of the last of these, Kirkland Lake, adopted the compulsory by-law only after an epidemic of septic sore throat had swept the community and taken four lives in 1930.

It is on such evidence as this then, that Mr. Herbert's tuberculous beverage label has a sound foundation and a widely applicable field in Canada. And yet the phrase should have been antiquated years before it arrived. Fitting as it may be to conditions which exist it is utterly incongruous without times—incongruous for the reason that pasteurization exists as the known and proven defense against all Mr. Herbert's label implies.

Duke Studies War As Bride Housekeeper

ALDERSHOT, England.—While King Edward's brother, the Duke of Gloucester, bends over his books at the army staff college, Camberley, near here, his bride (Lady Alice Scott) is busy with the management of her new home.

Since the Gloucesters came to the royal pavilion here a few weeks ago, the Duchess has found plenty to occupy her time and, like any newlywed, is happiest putting her home in order. Each morning, after the Duke has driven away in his automobile to work, the Duchess drives into Aldershot to do her own shopping. Generally she uses the small automobile given her by her brother-in-law, the King.

For the present court mourning has put a ban on entertaining, but later the royal couple are planning a series of intimate little dinner parties to their friends and the Duke's brother officers from the staff college. Only a small staff runs the royal pavilion, which was once Queen Victoria's home when she was visiting the army. Most trusted servants are a chauffeur, a valet who has been with the Duke for many years, and the Duchess' personal maid, who has attended her since childhood.

Expectant Mother

Mothercraft Nurse Outlines
Daily Routine During Pregnancy

"It is wiser to put up a fence at the top of a precipice than to maintain an ambulance at the bottom."
"The normal woman is never safer, healthier, happier, or more uplifted than during pregnancy. Life should run bright and full at those times: if the habits are simple, sensible, regular, and active, there is no ground for worry or anxiety as to childbirth. The expectant mother who takes proper care of herself, and avoids invalidism, is safeguarded all through. Nature can always be relied on to do her part kindly and surely, if the mother does hers," declares Mothercraft nurse.

"From the time of 'conception' up to the time of what we call the 'birth' the baby is a living, growing being, entirely dependent on its mother. All that the past can do for the baby, all that 'heredity' can do, has been done nine months before its birth.
During the first nine crucial months of life in the womb the health of the mother is the health of the baby. The unborn babe is warmed by the mother's warmth, and fed with her blood. If the mother fails to take proper exercise and to breathe pure air she brings on indigestion and constipation, and tends to suffer headache, neuritis, and weariness, because her blood becomes impure and poisoned. The most delicate and sensitive parts of the unborn child are its rapidly growing brain and nervous system; naturally these suffer most, but impurity of the mother's blood leaves no part of the young organism undamaged.

A baby fed for the first nine months of its life on impure blood (whether the impurity is due to the mother suffering from indigestion and constipation or to her taking alcohol) comes into the world handicapped.

The first duty of every mother is to spare no pains to keep herself strong and healthy and her blood pure, for the sake of her child. Indeed, she owes this duty to herself also, because if the mother is in good health before the baby is born she need have no anxiety that anything will go wrong at the time of birth." (Extract from The Expectant Mother and Baby's First Months by Sir F. Truby King, C.M.G., M.B., B.Sc. (Public Health Edin.))

She should see her doctor early in pregnancy, also her dentist. Her husband should be interested. So much health and happiness comes from sensible co-operation and life is easier when we take our responsibilities seriously.

Fresh air—Day and Night.
Sunshine—An important essential of life.

Exercise—An expectant mother should never shut herself indoors, but go out for a walk every day. She should carry on a normal life. A daily rest should be taken.

Water—Plenty of water to drink in between meals. Water helps in removing waste products from the body. Each organ of elimination must be kept in good working order if she is going to be healthy and have a pure blood stream.

Diet in pregnancy—The mother and child's health depends so much on proper diet. Fresh fruit and vegetables, whole wheat meal flour, whole grain cereals, milk, butter, eggs, cheese and fish. Minerals are as important as vitamins. Care must be taken in cooking vegetables. Cook in very little water or in casserole, if cooked in water, use as little water as possible and do not throw this away but use as a soup. It contains valuable mineral salts. It is an excellent idea to take some raw apple or other raw fruit at each meal.

The health of mother and child depends on good prenatal care. —Published under the auspices of the Canadian Mothercraft Society.

Parting Guest

I know I welcomed winter
With a delighted smile;
He was a useful, keen guest,
I loved him—for a while—

But love is only transient,
It passes like a song.
Winter wore his welcome out
By staying far too long.

And such bewitching sunshines
Entire me today;
It has a touch of April
And just a hint of May.

Even my white hyacinths
And golden daffodils
Take on an added beauty
From sunny window sills.

So I speed my parting guest
With an impatient frown,
March wind, will you hurry, please,
And show him out of town!

STORIES

Joan Denby of humble origin, is introduced as a social friend of Miss Georgina La Fontaine, rather than as her secretary. She meets Piers Hannon, millionaire, who draws his attention to her. Lord Silverside proposes to Joan.

Joan meets Miss La Fontaine at her home. Piers Hannon takes Joan and her family for a cruise abroad his yacht. Joan is horrified when confronted by Hannon with a blackmail letter from her father. He proposes that she marry him.

She lay in the attic bed unable to sleep. Her last night here! The last night of her old life. To-morrow, body and soul, she would belong to Piers Hannon—and such a cold, changed, terrifying Piers Hannon. How could sleep be possible in the circumstances. She did not even know where she would be to-morrow night, except that she would be— with him!

She heard her father come in long after midnight was in bed and asleep. She heard voices down below and then all was quiet. She lay awake through the night, only doing a little sometimes. She woke with a start to see the first pale light, and as her father left early for the factory, she got up at once so that she might catch him before he went. She planned to walk some of the way to the works with him, and tell him that he had been found out.

She dressed hurriedly, and with her head aching violently, went downstairs. The fire was alight, and a glimmer of gas still burned overhead. But Mr. Denby was not there, and her mother was sitting alone at the table, as yet unable for breakfast. She was stirring a cup of tea she had just made, and something in her unsteady hand, her drawn face, and red-rimmed eyes told Joan at once that she had not been to bed all night.

"Mother!" she cried. "Darling! What is it? What is the matter?" Mrs. Denby took the spoon out of her cup and laid it down in the saucer.

"Denby's gone," she said, faintly. "What do you mean? Father? What has happened?"

"He's gone, Denby has!" replied her mother, in a strange, harsh voice, looking at her with eyes that were swollen and red with weeping. "He's gone on a boat for New York. He'll be sailing now," she added, glancing out at the growing light, and then burst out: "And good riddance too, it is!"

Happily the poor woman began to cry again. Joan put her arms round her.

"Mother, what do you mean?" "I don't know what's wrong to say it, but I'm glad he's gone! I'm glad of it, though he has been my husband all these years! He wasn't a good man, Denby wasn't. Last night he came in: 'I'm off,' he says—just like that! 'What do you mean, Bert?' I ask him. 'The detectives are after me,' he says, 'over a job I've been doing. They're following me. I heard to-night. So I'm not waiting for the police to get me,' he says. 'I got a pal can get me a berth on a ship leaving for New York at daybreak,' he says. 'And I'm off!' It was terrible, such a shock, like What 'job' he meant, I don't know! "What did he expect you to do? What did he say?" asked Joan, horrified.

"Say?" Her mother looked down into Joan's face as she knelt before her, and became suddenly calm. She wiped her eyes. "He says: 'You and the kids can go to blazes! I'm fed up, anyway!' That's what he says, not another word!" "And he went?" "He went—and slammed the door after him!" "Oh, mother, mother, how could he go like that? How dreadful! Are you sure he's gone?"

"I looked up and down the street a while ago, and along comes that pale of his, Roakes. I knew he'd be the one who was getting Bert the berth in the ship, so I ask him, 'Has Bert gone, Mr. Roakes?' I ask. 'Yes, he's gone, Miss!' says Roakes. 'I just been waving him goodbye from the quay! A nasty sort of man, Roakes is—Denby always took up with the bad ones!"

This strange way of referring all the time to "Denby," "Denby," and not "your father" had been puzzling Joan for more than a minute or two; and gazing steadily into Joan's face, the mother said quietly:

"Don't you worry, my lass, about Denby being a bad lot. He wasn't your father!"

STARTLING CONFESSION
Accompanied, Joan stared at her; and in reply to her bewildered questioning, Mrs. Denby explained:

"It's all so long ago. Your father, my girl, was Mr. Henry La Fontaine, Miss La Fontaine's younger brother, him that went to the North Pole and was lost." She began to cry again, a little. "Oh, I don't say I think I'm wicked—it's terrible for you, I know. But it's better for you to have no name than to be the child of a man like Denby!"

Joan comforted her, as soon as her own emotion and dismay would permit her.

"Darling, darling little mother! I am sure you never meant to be wicked! Then Miss La Fontaine is my aunt—how strange, how strange it all is!"

Quietly, her mother told Joan the story.

"He was killed, Joany, before you were ever born—and I married Denby. He was good to me at first; as things were. But I had a little money then—no, you didn't know. He had it off me pretty quick, and spent it all. I never told you about you not being his girl like Maude and the boys, because he didn't want it. I never let Miss La Fontaine tell you either; it didn't seem fair to Denby, him having given you his name, like. But now he's gone there don't seem to be any reason why you shouldn't know. Oh, Joany, Joany baby, will you ever forgive me?" Joan did her best to reassure her mother; and Mrs. Denby, at last, wiped her eyes, and said cheerfully enough:

"There is always a tendency to criticize sovereigns till they have been able to forge their own greatness."—The Dean of Windsor.

"I don't say it might all be worse. Now you're marrying Mr. Hannon; he's got so much and he's so kind that I don't say he'll do something to help me and the two boys!" (To Be Continued.)

Daily Newspapers Being Issued By United States Government

From the New York Times

The initial issue of the first official daily newspaper of the United States Government rolled from the plant presses of the Government Printing Office the other day.

Edited, published and circulated by Government personnel, it is devoted exclusively to the rules, orders, regulations, specifications and judicial interpretations of the executive branch of the Federal establishment.

A special appropriation of $100,000 is available from the recent Reorganization Act to finance the venture through the remainder of the 1936 fiscal year, which ends June 30 next. The daily is officially styled The Federal Register and is in the same format as The Congressional Record, the closest approach heretofore in American history to the official gazette of other great capitals.

The Congressional Record, however, is devoted exclusively to the transactions and debates of the House and Senate and appears only when Congress is in session. It is published by and for Congress and never has been offered as an official record of government. By contrast, The Federal Register undertakes to present in official, authoritative and uniform manner the multifarious decisions of the 130-odd Federal administrative units.

It will be a formal journal, devoted exclusively to official texts. Editorial comment is specifically forbidden by the statute creating the enterprise. News of matters beyond the administrative and quasi-judicial agencies is to be limited sharply to the official utterances of department or bureau chiefs, as transmitted formally to the Federal Register Administrative Committee composed of the Archivist of the United States, an Assistant Attorney General and the Public Printer.

The Register will appear daily throughout the year except on Sundays and Mondays and days following holidays.

The initial run was 12,000 copies. About 1000 copies are required in the Government departments and agencies, principally in their legal divisions. The remaining copies are for sale at 5 cents a single copy, $1 a month by subscription or $10 a year.

A survey by the American Bar Association showed a wide potential demand for such a daily record among attorneys, newspaper editors, scholars and business men.

New orders, the survey of the Association disclosed, aggregate approximately 200,000 words monthly in simple text. Perhaps an equal volume of interpretations, rulings and decisions follows each month's orders.

Henceforward all current orders will be published daily in official text in the Federal Register. As rapidly as possible the existing body of administrative law will be codified, department by department and bureau by bureau.

"It is quite clear that if all the world is turning we cannot be defenseless."—Mr. Lloyd George.

Preparations

BEFORE you take any preparation you don't know all about, for the relief of headaches; or the pains of rheumatism, neuralgia or neuritis, ask your doctor what he thinks about it—in comparison with "Aspirin."

We say this because, before the discovery of "Aspirin," most remedies were advised against by physicians as being bad for the stomach; or, often, for the heart. And the discovery of "Aspirin" largely changed medical practice.

Countless thousands of people who have taken "Aspirin" year in and out without ill effect, have proved that the medical findings about its safety were correct.

Remember this "Aspirin" is rated among the safest methods yet discovered for the relief of headaches and all common pains—and safe for the average person to take regularly.

"Aspirin" Tablets are made in Canada. "Aspirin" is the registered trademark of the Bayer Company, Limited. Look for the name Bayer in the form of a cross on every tablet.
